Note from the Editorial Team

Dear readers,

As pen is to paper

Creative expression is to a well rounded development.

The last few years gone by, have left our students' pulsing minds bursting with innumerable thoughts, ideas and creative seeds but unfortunately not many avenues which gave them a chance at expression.

We have all experienced a surge of emotions which have at moments brought a smile and at some moments a tear, nonetheless we have grown through it together. We have collectively, against all odds managed to keep schooling alive via digital means and are now back to the new normal .

Keeping this in mind, Royal Global School decided to curate and dedicate a magazine solely to the middle school ranging from Grade 6 to Grade 8. Here, we believe not in controlling minds rather we seek to liberate minds .

This magazine comes to you as a labor of love of our students where they have worked diligently at designing the cover page, selecting the content, and editing it .

As we bring to you the second edition of Mirror Junior we hope you enjoy flipping through it and reading it as much as our students enjoyed putting it together for our readers .

The beauty of nature

The scenic beauty has taken me over,
the city life is finally rebounding,
The beauty of nature like the old days,
the nearby fields have drawn me in.

The cars have stopped,
and cycles are the new trend.
This is an out of blue change,
I never expected to see.

The trees have started growing,
and the plants have started blooming again,
as if saying hi,
to all the beauty that surrounds them.

The sound of the rain is so soothing to our ears,
that it makes every human overcome what they most fear.
Everywhere you see, greenery attracts your eye,
everywhere you smell, you smell the breath
of the divine.

The priceless treasures of mother nature,
are always the best places for leisure.
The loveliness of the bees, the howling of the wolves,
the friendly creatures teaching us to live in harmony,
has always been a blessing to mankind.

It is our responsibility to be the keepers,
of our ever growing nature.
God has given us the most beautiful paintings,
a gift to see our mother earth everyday fill with greetings.

THE FORGOTTEN LOVE

Somewhere in the woods
I hear the sound of your laughter
a wave of memory
hits me harder.

Looking at the bright white moon
seeing a glimpse of us there,
I wish you were here
just to embrace me once.

To my lost love
I want you here, with me
sitting right next to the lake while we make jokes and laugh with glee.

Being someone so close to me,
leaving me behind like a fallen leaf of a tree
does it not hurt you?
Oh, my lost love
our story was not the one to be ended.

FUTURE SELF

Isn't it surprising?
How we grow up too fast.
Wondering about the future,
while we forget the past.

Learning new things everyday,
wanting to be the way
I want.
To my future self,
work as hard as you can
because at the end,
it always pays off.

To my future self,
I hope you are dreaming
just as I am,
but, are you dreaming about the what I am?

Probably something else you are wondering about where are you future self?
somewhere else,
living a different life than me?

Dear future self,
no matter the storms in your life,
have faith in yourself and fight.

IN PURSUIT OF FREEDOM

We are all proud of our India
and that is permanent,
whatever trouble has come forward with courage, skill and intelligence, we faced our predicament.

We sleep safe and content every night because of Heroes who gave their all so,
that instead of a lifetime of slavery
we wake up to a better tomorrow.

We always think of these famous fighters
Gandhi, Bhagat Singh, Tilak and Bose, but our respect should also go to the common people who chose to work towards a free country and let their next generation happily grow.

Our country is a land born through blood of martyrs who lost their lives, to make ours free of worries and strife.
We give our respects to those bravehearts
who rest in solitude,
the ones who deserve our sincere and never-ending gratitude.

THE LOST ONE

My lost, loved one
I can't think of anything but you,
It's been so long since I last saw your face,
but to be honest, it's true,
It feels like you've disappeared without a trace,
I am desolate, and now my heart is sore,
But now the past is long gone,
without you, my life is no more,
So, I must move on,
your fingerprints were all around my room,
my heart is filled with loneliness,
and my life is on a doom,
It's night and darkness,
the last bit of your memory, is something I would hold to my heart,
I would cherish you forever and never part.

EQUANIMITY

Infinity and beyond,
the water seems to flow
spreading prosperity where it's bound to go.

As I hear the rumbling surf,
I feel at peace.
Contrasting the strength of the "mighty" beast.

And staring at this unending beauty,
I find solace in its every wave.
For when my thoughts grow too loud,
and I feel distressed,
it's this equanimity I crave.

THE TIME I FLEW A KITE

As soon as I reached home
there was a gust of wind pushing me away and at that time I knew today would be a good day.

I ran home as fast as I could and there I stood,
watching my mother with a kite in a good mood.

I gazed at the sky, while people were gazing at their screens
The sky was so beautiful, it was a gradient of blue and green.

I had no experience or skills at flying a kite but, I tried and tried I did with all my might.
I didn't know which way the wind blew the best.

Was it east or west ?
So, I looked at the Indian flag, fluttering in the breeze like a tempest
This bought my doubts to a halting rest.

And there it flew,
my kite flew over the horizon
And when it flew with the birds
there my face brightened.
at the end of the day,
my smile didn't fade away.

AN ANSWER

One glimpse of her and I knew,
she is the best teacher of few.
She took me to the outer world
with the key to the learning world.

Thousands told ,by me it couldn't be done
but with a giggle she replied, that even if it couldn't
I would be the one
Who wouldn't say so till I tried.

SHADES OF PAPA

You wake up as a night owl
and sleep like an early bird Although 4 , isn't a time to growl
you're ready in the kitchen undeterred

I love my tiffin and breakfast that you cook, and the sudden ice cream trips that we took.
You don't need to teach me off the book
as you cook up stories to feed me by fluke.

You're the world's best father , that's cliché
but I can't help because that's true
I love all shades of you because after all you are my most favourite hue.

MY TEACHER, MY ALL

A philosopher,a mentor, an ocean of knowledge
my helping hand,who's always been there teaching me ever so many things and with utmost care.

Everyday I come into school
I see your smiling face
you help me get through this tough knowledge maze.

My entire life I've been preparing for a certain test but you're the one who reminds me that all I have to do is do my very best.

IS MONEY THE MOST IMPORTANT PART OF OUR LIVES?

Do you think the amount of money made by an individual is the most important part of their lives? In my view, I think money is a prominent part of our lives, but there are things way more important than money, such as our family, friends, loved ones, healthcare, and education. We require money to pay for everything which can make our lives easier. The food we eat, the shelter, paying the medical bills, and providing our children with a good and proper education. Money is just a mere commodity, which people have high demands for and would do anything just to acquire, so people work diligently with their jobs, expecting to be paid a higher sum of money for their hard work and efficient effort. It allows us to trade goods and services, and without money in our lives, the entire industries of banking and finance would become unwanted. People would likely go back to the barter system where we used to get goods by exchanging other goods. Money can help us achieve life goals, but it can't really buy happiness. It indeed provides us with safety & protection for us and our family & loved ones.

A DREAM

Nobody tells you how loud the sound of silence is. At that moment, I felt I could hear everything and nothing at the same time. I could hear the sounds of splashing water telling me, "You all don't care for me, I am leaving you all. Bye!!" I could also hear the sounds of many people's footsteps coming towards me with different weapons in their hand fighting for water. My eyes opened and I stopped dreaming. That serene and beautiful summer morning turned out to be the most dreadful and spooky morning of my life.

That thought of my dream continuously wandered in my mind the entire time I was in school. I was not able to concentrate on anything else other than that dream. That day in school, my teacher too explained to us about the water wastage in our world. She said, "We all never care for the thing we get for free. Water is a natural resource that is renewable but we are using it so unnecessarily that we are going to face water scarcity in future. We have many resources of water but the lakes, rivers and ponds are being littered by us. So, we must conserve water and use it carefully." After I reached home that day and sat for lunch, my mother asked me to wash my hands. I left the tap open and then again, my mother told me about water scarcity and asked me to shut the tap. After that I rested but the incidents of the day kept wandering in my mind. I was wondering why this term kept reiterating again and again to me. This thought gained more power and I became determined to stop the water wastage. I made up my mind to start conserving water myself and ask others too. I decided to start an awareness camp for other students like me to encourage them to conserve water.

This is just a story but it can be true if we don't conserve water and use it unjustly. It is the duty of each and every individual civilian to conserve water to save the world from the upcoming disaster.

SCHOOL

Very big rooms and benches for two,
walls full of charts, green, red and blue.
Many such rooms and wonderful playgrounds,
'Where is this?' This is school!

Science is fun, it's very interesting,
I try and keep my cool, but it's just so exciting!
Tests for starch and research on bones
and an hour of writing!

Maths is cool, the formulas are easy,
the questions are called problems, though they are not!
'What is $39+87$?' That's not tough!
but writing? Definitely a lot!

Very big rooms and benches for two,
walls full of charts, green, red and blue.
Many such rooms and wonderful playgrounds,
'Where is this?' This is school!

Hindi is a bit tough, but it's still OK,
I try and keep up, and I manage doing it.

Reading and writing is very easy, but I still get scared when Sir shouts, 'SIT!'

English is the best, it's my favourite,
Grammar is not hard, so is reading and writing.

I finish an English novel every ten days,
sometimes I think a book's better than playing!

School is cool, not literally, though,
I make a lot of friends, and some foes!

SST is just epic,

Civics is basically about our country socially,
Geography is about the earth and it's landscapes,

and History is like a very, very long story
There are many more subjects in school,

But if I tell you, you'll get bored,
'Cause there are so many more subjects,
your eyes will become sore.

So school is amazing, that's for sure,
especially games, when I say,
"Let's play TT" or "Take out a chessboard!"
Games always makes up for a bad day!

I am average at everything, except Sanskrit,
It is just too hard,
I can't understand anything,
and that hurts just like a glass shard.
So this is school, its lots of fun,
I learn and play like everyone,
and though blazing hot is the sun,
I love school more than anyone!
